The topics discussed are continuously updated. Professional translators and interpreters have to improve not just their foreign language skills, but also their mother language skills as it is their target language. Linguistic skills is an important part of the translation skills and complex linguistic training of translators and interpreters plays a huge role in this. The course also improves critical thinking and public speaking.
Brief outline of the course: Morphology. Morphemes and morphematic structure. Morphological language classification. Declination and conjugation in translation. Text types and styles. Syntax. Sentence and discourse. Different styles of sentences. Tasks and functions of simple and complex sentences. Syntax in specific text types. Expressive and defective syntactic constructions. Practical training focused on writing skills.
