Type, extent and method of instruction: Form of instruction: Lecture Course type: A (A - Compulsory courses, B - Compulsory elective courses, C - Elective courses) Recommended number of periods: 26 Method of study: combined
Number of credits: 4
Recommended semester/trimester: 6.
Level: I.
Prerequisites:
Course completion conditions: The grading scale: A (100–94%), B (93–87%), C (86–80%), D (79–73%), E (72–65%). Credits are assigned to the student who collects the minimum of 65 points out of the possible 100 for completing the given requirements. If the seminar paper submitted has not been accepted in terms of continuous assessment, the student has to create and submit another seminar paper. a) continuous assessment: active participation in the interactive tasks and continuous knowledge verification assignments, completion of the study assignments, self-study, seminar paper addressing the selected topic (handout, PPT) b) final assessment: Calculated based on the continuous assessment and written exam or oral exam
Learning objectives: The student <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. understands the diachronous aspects of phonological, grammatical, and lexical specificities of the German language from the Old High German until today 2. understands the chronology of the High German language evolution including the linguistic transformations 3. understands the unification processes in the creation of the supra-regional, single German language 4. gains experience with the plurality of German dialects in German-speaking countries and Slovak diasporas 5. gets acquainted with the oldest as well as current tendencies in the evolution of this language 6. can apply this knowledge to analyse the selected historical texts in German Brief outline of the course: The course focuses on the chronology of changes undergone by the High German language in the social context. The pre-literary period and the Gothic language are addressed as well. Diachronous aspects of German phonology, morphology, syntax, and vocabulary are addressed systematically. The course explains how German evolved, its standardisation, and the role of Martin Luther’s Bible translation. Selected chapters from German dialectology and German language “islands” in Slovakia are also addressed. The descriptions of the language changes are illustrated by evidence and the course involves interpretation exercises as well. They focus on enhancing the knowledge of language-related facts as well the student's understanding of the contemporary German language structure.

The course assessment corresponds to the A-FX grading scale: A (100 – 94%), B (93 – 87%), C (86 – 80%), D (79 – 73%), E (72 – 65%). b) final assessment: test: 100%
Learning objectives: Students will be able to: 1. identify subtle semantic and stylistic differences (nuances) of two German words which are similar in content, 2. differentiate the meaning of formally similar German words (e. g. different prefixes and the same root of the word) as well as within the language pair German – Slovak (e. g. faux amis – false friends), 3. remember the selected phrases and idioms in German and Slovak and they will be aware of their specifics on the expressional level, 4. apply the aforementioned knowledge in the process of text production and reception, i.e. deciding the adequate German or Slovak variant in the context of a translation.
Brief outline of the course: Work with the basic word classes (mostly nouns, adjectives and verbs), idioms and phrasal units – the emphasis is put on the peculiarities typical for the mentioned word classes and phrasal units from the contrastive point of view within the language pair German – Slovak: e.g. often confused words – similarly sounding words that possess different meaning, e.g. words which have the same root and different affixes, synonymous verbs – one Slovak expression has more German expressions but they cannot be used interchangeably; phrasal units and their equivalents in the opposite language pointing out the discrepancy between form and content.

Course completion conditions: A student has right for one resit of a final oral exam. a) continuous assessment: assignment in course of a semester: 0-20 points mid-term oral exam: 0 – 30 points b) final assessment: oral exam (interpreting): 0-50 points, for all parts together (assignments in course of a semester, oral exam): 0 – 100 points
Learning objectives: Students will be able to acquire basic practical skills in consecutive and simultaneous interpreting and apply the acquired theoretical knowledge (e.g. specific interpreting strategies) of interpretation in practice.
Brief outline of the course: The system of exercises in consecutive and simultaneous interpreting is focused on the developing of skills and habits in apperception of segment produced communiqués and presentation of segments in the target language. Exercises include reciprocal interpreting: Slovak - German, German- Slovak and they are in progress with the gradual gradation of linguistic complexity of the texts, speech rate and the severity of the interpreting conditions. The emphasis is on the removal of language deficit and creation of one's own habits of interpreting reactions. Selected communiqués with lower degree of linguistic difficulty, but this linguistic difficulty is gradually increasing and the main component of the exercises is expansion and refining of vocabularies when developing the interpreting competence. The main theme is "the European Union" and the terminology associated with it, so the majority of texts and language communiqués is focused on this field.

Number of credits: 6
Recommended semester/trimester: 3.
Level: I.
Prerequisites:
Course completion conditions: During the semester, students will write two short interpretive probes of an analysed literary text. After the end of the semester, they will take a final oral exam. It is necessary for student to read the required primary texts as part of the self-study. The course assessment corresponds to the A-FX grading scale. Credits are assigned to students who acquire a minimum of 65 points out of a possible 100. a) continuous assessment: two interpretation probes of literary texts: 0 – 20 points b) final assessment: final oral exam: 0 – 80 points
Learning objectives: Course aims: Students will acquire basic knowledge about the literature of German-speaking countries in the 18th and 19th century and they will deepen their knowledge about the most important literary and aesthetic concepts of German literature of the 18th and 19th century. They will be able to differentiate the literary history in the diversity of its phenomena and social and historical connections. They will apply the acquired knowledge in further development of literary, analytical and interpretation skills on the basis of analyses and interpretations of selected works. Students will be able to interpret the literary works from the thematic, linguistic and compositional point of view and to judge their aesthetic and literary value.
Brief outline of the course: Development of the literary history of the German-speaking countries in the 18th and 19th century. Overview and characteristics of the literary periods (The Enlightenment, the Sturm und Drang movement, classic German literature, romanticism, literature of the Vormärz period, literature of the Biedermeier, realism in the 2nd half of the 19th century, naturalism in the German literature), life and works of the most important German writers of this period (G. E. Lessing, J. W. Goethe, F. Schiller, Novalis, Joseph von Eichendorff, the brothers Grimm, E. T. A. Hoffmann, H. Heine, T. Fontane, T. Storm, G. Keller, G. Hauptmann, etc.). Literary and scientific analysis and interpretation of the selected literary works of all genres of German, Austrian and Swiss writers of the 18th and 19th century and learning the social, historical and literary context of the texts, aesthetic position of the authors as well as the specifics of their works. It is expected that students will individually read the original sources and so they will acquire the required knowledge. A necessary course completion condition is reading of the primary texts as part of the self-study and acquiring basic terminological knowledge and analytical skills that will be applied and developed when interpreting literary texts.

As part of the self-study, they will get acquainted with the study regulations. In cooperation with the study advisor, he/she provides students with advice on the selection of subjects and the compilation of the study plan in AiS2. He/she shares with students his/her experience with the selection and provision of study literature, preparation for exams, with the possibility of individual study, obtaining scholarships or participating in the activities of student organizations. The tutor maps, analyzes and evaluates the needs of students (e.g. in the form of an online questionnaire). In cooperation with the department's study advisor or with other tutors he/she prepares presentations and discussions, which he/she effectively promotes. The tutor informs students about important dates in the study schedule. He/she collects suggestions from students, evaluates them and communicates study problems with responsible staff. Suitable platforms on social networks are used for communication.

Course Description

University: Matej Bel University in Banská Bystrica
Faculty: Faculty of Arts
Code: 1d-lin-030	Course name: Text Linguistics GE
Type, extent and method of instruction: Form of instruction: Lecture / Seminar Course type: B (A - Compulsory courses, B - Compulsory elective courses, C - Elective courses) Recommended number of periods: 13 / 13 Method of study: combined
Number of credits: 5
Recommended semester/trimester: 3., 5.
Level: I.
Prerequisites:
Course completion conditions: Presence in class is required (a maximum of three absences), preparation of a seminar paper – work on the assigned tasks, active participation in classes, acquisition of a minimal knowledge level (a minimum of 65% of assessment of the exam), successfully passing the oral exam. Students must be enrolled in this course through AIS during the particular period. A student has a right for one regular term and one resit of the written exam and one resit of an oral exam. The course assessment corresponds to the A-FX grading scale: A (100 – 94%), B (93 – 87%), C (86 – 80%), D (79 – 73%), E (72 – 65%). b) final assessment: written exam - 40% and oral exam – 60%
Learning objectives: Students will: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. be able to characterize text linguistics as a scientific discipline, define the basic stages of its development from its formation to the present days and incorporate it into the system of other disciplines, 2. be familiar with different approaches to classification of texts, be able to evaluate their pros and cons, and apply the given knowledge in practice (i.e. they will be able to comment on possibilities of text exemplars classification to the appropriate text classes), 3. be able to comment on the concept of text from the process aspect (production and reception of texts) and reflect the theoretical knowledge into practice, 4. be able to comment on the specifics of the different types resp. text classes in theoretical level (i. e. they will know the possible criteria to evaluate a text’s properties) as well as a practical level (i.e. will be able to analyse particular test exemplars on the basis of appropriate criteria).
Brief outline of the course: In relation to current trends in text linguistics directing to the pragmatic-cognitive understanding of textuality, the course is focused on introducing the concept of text in context different historically-based concepts with accentuation of the final pragmatic-cognitive stage. This perception of the concept of text also implies clarifying the media impact (character of the text and its specifics on the background of different media realizations - e-texts, texts on television, etc.) as well as process aspects (reception and production of a text). The explanation of this term, introducing the concept of text as a phenomenon and application of a prototype theory point out the cause of difficulties of unambiguous definition of the concept of a text.

Course completion conditions: During the semester, students will analyse the source and/or specialized text about the subject's topic and will have to actively participate during the lessons (max. 3 permitted absences). After the semester completion, they will prepare a seminar work to the extent of 10 – 15 pages, or the Powerpoint presentation to the extent of 20 slides. The course assessment corresponds to the A-FX grading scale: A (100 – 94%), B (93 – 87%), C (86 – 80%), D (79 – 73%), E (72 – 65%). Credits are assigned to the student who acquires a minimum of 65 points out of possible 100.
a) continuous assessment: Active participation in the lessons – 20 %. Paper presentation – 30 %
b) final assessment: Seminar paper – 50%
Learning objectives: After the course completion, students should better understand the important historical events in the period of the Early Modern Period, which are usually described as revolutions in the specialized literature. They will be informed about their causes, inside development, wider context of the development and the overall meaning in the example of five selected revolutions. The paper (or Powerpoint presentation) preparation should help students to clearly understand the observed factors. The paper's/presentation's content will be an analysis of the selected historical source or specialized scientific study. Finally, they will also prepare a final seminar paper, in which they will have the task of critically analysing the selected problem of a concrete revolutionary event. These tasks will help develop the students' critical thinking and ability to interpret historical events objectively.
Brief outline of the course: During five meetings, students will be informed about the historical causes and results of the most important revolutions in the period of the Early Modern Period (16th – 18th centuries). The following historical events will be discussed: the German Reformation as a religious and social revolution (1500 -1555); the Dutch War of Independence (1566 – 1648); the English Civil War or the fight of the Parliament against the King (1640 – 1660); the American Revolution as a fight for national and political self-determination (1763 – 1783); the Great French Revolution as a fight for human rights (1789 – 1799).
