They can use the grammatical categories correctly and are able to detect stylistic differences in texts. They are able to translate intermediate texts related to the selected thematic units. They can work with mass media texts, distinguish journalistic style genres, and interpret them. They present the knowledge acquired during a 10–15 minute presentation to prove their ability to select information from different kinds of audio texts (in terms of contents and stylistics).
Brief outline of the course: The course aims to help the student develop their vocabulary. More complex, yet common communication situations are addressed in terms of understanding and interpretation of written and oral texts. The command of lexis is considerably improved in terms of passive as well as active use. Mass media texts are used to expand the vocabulary pertaining to social life, politics, economy, and culture. Literary texts are also used to train interpretation and re-stylisation. Topics: geography, city, industry, ecology, image and visual art interpretation, folk art & crafts, film.

Learning objectives: After successfully completing the course, the student will possess the following skills in the selected foreign language: - can express basic needs and communicate in common everyday situations; - is familiar with the basic elements of the culture of the community that actively uses the target language; - is familiar with the key typological and genealogical characteristics of the target language. The selected foreign language is mastered at the A1–A2 level.
Brief outline of the course: In the course, the student continues studying a foreign language from the current offer, with their initial level of competence in that language at the beginning of the course being A1.1–A1 according to the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR). The aim is to broaden general linguistic awareness, knowledge of European languages, and to further develop individual receptive and productive communicative competence in the new language. The range of foreign languages offered includes selected languages of EU Member States, as well as some minority and regional languages used in Europe and languages of partner countries outside the EU. Instruction in the course partially employs plurilingual approaches to foreign language teaching. The course is intended for applicants interested in the study opportunities offered by the EMERGE European University Alliance.

Faculty: Faculty of Arts
Code: 1d-rus-208	Course name: Lexicology and Phraseology
Type, extent and method of instruction: Form of instruction: Lecture / Seminar Course type: A (A - Compulsory courses, B - Compulsory elective courses, C - Elective courses) Recommended number of periods: 13 / 26 Method of study: combined
Number of credits: 4
Recommended semester/trimester: 4.
Level: I.
Prerequisites:
Course completion conditions: During the semester, the student completes and submits homework and takes a written test. After completing the semester, the student takes the final oral and written exams. The maximum number of points consisting of continuous and final assessment is 100. The student has the right to one resit. Credits are assigned to the student who acquires a minimum of 65 points out of a possible 100 for completing the given requirements. The grading scale: A (100–94%), B (93–87%), C (86–80%), D (79–73%), E (72–65%). a) continuous assessment: Completing homework: 0–15 p. Test: 0–25 p. b) final assessment: Oral and final written exams: 0–60 p. (written part: 0–30 p.; oral part: 0–30 p.)
Learning objectives: The student has systematic knowledge of Russian vs. Slovak lexicology and phraseology. The subject matter is diachronously presented in a broader social, cultural, and pragmatic context. The student can compare the Slovak vs. Russian approaches to lexicology and phraseology. They understand the diachronous and synchronous relationships between the Russian and Slovak languages in lexicology and phraseology. They understand the relation of lexicology and phraseology to the cultural and social development. They use this knowledge to further develop their linguistic, scholarly, and cultural literacy as the core of their future profession. These knowledge and skills are necessary in learning/teaching the Russian as a foreign language. The student learns new phrases and improves their active and passive Russian vocabulary. They can identify the paradigmatic relationships with the lexical system, lexical-semantic categories, and the syntagmatic relationships among lexical units. They can identify lexical, morphological, phonetic, and even interlingual homonymy. They can use conceptual, expressive, and stylistic synonyms. They can distinguish gradual, complementary, and vector antonyms. They can distinguish antonyms and conversions. They can create synonymic chains and antonymic pairs. They can identify Russian vocabulary and phraseologisms in terms of origin, expressiveness, emotionality as well as their territorial and social use.

Type, extent and method of instruction: Form of instruction: Seminar Course type: B (A - Compulsory courses, B - Compulsory elective courses, C - Elective courses) Recommended number of periods: 26 Method of study: combined
Number of credits: 5
Recommended semester/trimester: 5.
Level: I.
Prerequisites:
Course completion conditions: During the semester, the student submits a seminar paper addressing the selected topic. After completing the semester, they take the final oral exam. The maximum number of points consisting of continuous and final assessment is 100. The student has the right to one resit. Credits are assigned to the student who acquires a minimum of 65 points out of a possible 100 for completing the given requirements. The grading scale: A (100–94%), B (93–87%), C (86–80%), D (79–73%), E (72–65%). a) continuous assessment: Seminar paper: 0–50 p. b) final assessment: Oral exam: 0–50 p.
Learning objectives: The student has the basic command of working with literary texts. They can identify literary forms and genres, literary means of expression and have didactic skills allowing them to work with a literary text. The student knows and applies the contemporary methods promoting the development of cognitive and creative skills in students as well as the activating methods and concepts in education in working with Russian literary texts in teaching. The student understands how a literary work as an oral or written language manifestation represents the human aesthetic relationship to the reality using a variety of language means. They can select and use the suitable teaching methods for working with literary texts. This provides a major opportunity for the pupils to develop critical thinking and creativity, cooperative skills, and allows them to present the results of their own effort.
Brief outline of the course: A theoretical introduction into literary texts and their characteristics. The general essence of a text. The aspects distinguishing literary and other (utility) texts. Text – definitions and understanding, basic functions and attributes – indicative (communicative) and artistic (aesthetic). The place of text and literary texts in communication and foreign language teaching in general. In terms of methodology, this course focuses on how the knowledge from Russian language didactics can be used in practice. This includes activating methods in working with literary texts (folklore) and excerpt analysis (19th and 20th century classics). The student learns about the activities performed by the teacher and pupils and analyses the steps pertaining to specific teaching methods. Working with literary texts during the Russian language lessons centres around individual aesthetic experience and intercultural dialogue. These factors promote complex development of the pupil's personality.

Type, extent and method of instruction: Form of instruction: Lecture / Seminar Course type: A (A - Compulsory courses, B - Compulsory elective courses, C - Elective courses) Recommended number of periods: 13 / 26 Method of study: combined
Number of credits: 5
Recommended semester/trimester: 1.
Level: I.
Prerequisites:
Course completion conditions: During the semester, the student completes and submits homework and takes a written test. After completing the semester, the student takes the final oral and written exams. The maximum number of points consisting of continuous and final assessment is 100. The student has the right to one resit. Credits are assigned to the student who acquires a minimum of 65 points out of a possible 100 for completing the given requirements. The grading scale: A (100–94%), B (93–87%), C (86–80%), D (79–73%), E (72–65%). a) continuous assessment: Completing homework: 0–15 p. Test: 0–25 p. b) final assessment: Oral and final written exams: 0–60 p. (written part: 0–30 p.; oral part: 0–30 p.)
Learning objectives: The student has systematic knowledge of Russian vs. Slovak morphology. They can identify the synchronous relationships between Russian vs. Slovak morphological phenomena. The knowledge of morphology is a core part of the respective professional standard and a necessity for any foreign language study. They apply their specialised knowledge of morphology to develop language literacy, communication and pragmatic competences, skills related to spoken and written expression, and speech cultivation. They master the Russian morphological terminology and can compare it to its Slovak counterpart. They can identify the morphemic structure of different word classes and forms in Russian and Slovak. The student can formulate the grammatical characteristics of general lexis. They enhance their basic theoretical knowledge of Russian morphology, which allows them to master noun and adjective declension and verb conjugation in practice. They can select the correct gram. gender, number, and case as well as standard Russian grammatical forms. They can perform a morphemic analysis, identify word classes and grammatical categories, problematic and transitional morphological phenomena as well as morpho-syntactic basics. They can apply the theoretical knowledge and practical skills in Russian morphology in communication. The student is ready to use this morphological knowledge in their job including independent scholarly and other specialised activities.
Brief outline of the course:

The morphological structure of the Russian language system.
Morphology as a scholarly field and academic subject.
Morphology among other language levels.
Word classes and grammatical categories. The morphological paradigm in Russian vs. Slovak.

Type, extent and method of instruction: Form of instruction: Course type: A (A - Compulsory courses, B - Compulsory elective courses, C - Elective courses) Recommended number of periods: Method of study: combined
Number of credits: 10
Recommended semester/trimester: 5., 6..
Level: I.
Prerequisites:
Course completion conditions: The state examination consists of an oral discussion-based defence of the bachelor's thesis. The state examination committee comprehensively evaluates the quality of the bachelor's thesis based on the assessments and student's defence of the thesis. The defence of the bachelor's thesis is based on an oral discussion, questions formulated to encompass a more broadly conceived problem related to the bachelor's thesis. The solution of this problem requires that the student has the necessary knowledge listed in the theses for the state examination. These are based on the socio-scientific, psychological-pedagogical and subject-didactic context of the field. The conditions for receiving the assessment A to E from the committee, after taking the content of the state examination into account, are specified in the theses for the state examination.
b) final assessment: State examination with an oral discussion-based defence of the final thesis: 100 points
Learning objectives: By passing the state examination and defending the bachelor's thesis students will be able: - To gain: - bearings in knowledge related to the problem addressed in the bachelor's thesis - To understand: - basic contexts of the problem at hand and formulate preliminary conclusions to their research before verifying them, or recommendations for practice - To utilise: - relevant specialised sources and from these identify important notions for the context of the thesis - theoretical knowledge of the subject matter in practical diagnostic and didactic applications - basic pedagogical, psychological and social relations to explain the problem at hand - and apply principles of bibliographic and citation standards - To: - analyse the topic at hand in a logical structure of the bachelor's thesis - design and verify teaching methods and education programs to solve the problem addressed in the bachelor's thesis and interpret the results - critically and logically work with the theoretical background of the problem at hand in the given context and use it in specialised communication while reasoning and defending their own views on the problem at hand

5. To create: • a consistent specialised, theoretical-didactic text, which contains the creative utilisation of relevant specialised sources, their own unique thoughts and possible solutions to the problem at hand
Brief outline of the course: Specialised knowledge of the problem addressed in the bachelor's thesis, of its social and psychological-pedagogical context. Didactic transformation of chosen theoretical knowledge of a relevant topic from the qualification course. The integration of knowledge from the individual disciplines of bachelor studies according to the theses for the state examination. Specialised communication and argumentation. University: Matej Bel University in Banská Bystrica
Faculty: Faculty of Arts
Code: 1d-his-221	Course name: The phenomenon of revolutions in the history of the early modern period
Type, extent and method of instruction: Form of instruction: Seminar Course type: B (A - Compulsory courses, B - Compulsory elective courses, C - Elective courses) Recommended number of periods: 26 Method of study: combined
Number of credits: 5
Recommended semester/trimester: 1., 3., 5.
Level: I.
Prerequisites:
Course completion conditions: During the semester, students will analyse the source and/or specialized text about the subject's topic and will have to actively participate during the lessons (max. 3 permitted absences). After the semester completion, they will prepare a seminar work to the extent of 10 – 15 pages, or the Powerpoint presentation to the extent of 20 slides. The course assessment corresponds to the A-FX grading scale: A (100 – 94%), B (93 – 87%), C (86 – 80%), D (79 – 73%), E (72 – 65%). Credits are assigned to the student who acquires a minimum of 65 points out of possible 100. a) continuous assessment: Active participation in the lessons – 20 %. Paper presentation – 30 % b) final assessment: Seminar paper – 50%
Learning objectives: After the course completion, students should better understand the important historical events in the period of the Early Modern Period, which are usually described as revolutions in the specialized literature. They will be informed about their causes, inside development, wider context of the development and the overall meaning in the example of five selected revolutions. The paper (or Powerpoint presentation) preparation should help students to clearly understand the observed factors. The paper's/presentation's content will be an analysis of the selected historical source or specialized scientific study. Finally, they will also prepare a final seminar paper, in which they will have the task of critically analysing the selected problem of a concrete revolutionary event. These tasks will help develop the students' critical thinking and ability to interpret historical events objectively.
Brief outline of the course: During five meetings, students will be informed about the historical causes and results of the most important revolutions in the period of the Early Modern Period (16th – 18th centuries). The following historical events will be discussed: the German Reformation as a religious and social revolution (1500 -1555); the Dutch War of Independence (1566 – 1648); the English Civil War or the fight of the Parliament against the King (1640 – 1660); the American Revolution as a fight for national and political self-determination (1763 – 1783); the Great French Revolution as a fight for human rights (1789 – 1799).
